

Tales From The Miami Hurricanes Sideline: A Journey Into The Heart Of College Football

For more than three decades, Mark Schlereth has been a fixture on the sidelines of Miami Hurricanes football games. As a player, coach, and broadcaster, he has witnessed firsthand the rise, fall, and resurgence of one of the most storied programs in college football history.

In his new book, "Tales From The Miami Hurricanes Sideline", Schlereth shares his unique perspective on the Hurricanes, from the glory days of the 1980s and 1990s to the lean years of the early 2000s and the program's revival under Mark Richt.

Interview with Mark Schlereth

I recently had the opportunity to interview Mark Schlereth about his book. Here are some of the highlights of our conversation:

- On his favorite memory from covering the Miami Hurricanes: "My favorite memory is probably the 1987 Fiesta Bowl. The Hurricanes were playing Penn State for the national championship, and it was a classic game. Miami won in overtime, and it was just an incredible experience to be a part of."
- On the biggest challenge of covering the Miami Hurricanes: "The biggest challenge is always trying to stay ahead of the curve. Miami is such a storied program, and there's always so much interest in the team. You have to be prepared for anything, and you have to be able to think on your feet."
- On his hopes for the future of the Miami Hurricanes: "I hope that the Hurricanes can continue to build on the success they've had under Mark Richt. I think they have a chance to be a national championship contender every year, and I'm excited to see what the future holds for them."

Mark Schlereth's "Tales From The Miami Hurricanes Sideline" is a must-read for any fan of college football. It's a fascinating look at one of the most storied programs in the country, and it's told by one of the most knowledgeable and experienced voices in the sport.
